I used Adobe Firefly because I have an Adobe account and I appreciate that they use their professional-grade, licensed images. This ensures they are not using other's creative licensed images. I asked Adobe to create a dangerous lemon squeezer with sharp teeth, it just kept creating the wrong kind of lemon squeezer using the lemon as its teeth. This is not what I was looking for so I asked: a handheld squeezer with sharp teeth and it's angry and scary. It kept giving me images with fruit already in the squeezer and I didn't want that so I took the word fruit out. I finally came up with a somewhat okay result.

I think it kind of resembles a fish but after spending way too much time on trying to get the right image I just used the most ideal picture.